

Students from Quivering Bodies, a Senior Capstone class, explore ways in which the live body, lived experience, and states of mind inform their diverse practices. This group exhibition features 15 artists whose work thematically fits into various stages of consciousness: falling asleep, dreaming, awakening, and all of life in between.

They write:

[The head sinks first, there is nothing else to be done.]

[Outside my window is also where I am standing, I wave,]

[reorienting from a high-pressurized place, needing to buy a ham for some reason.]

Dive deep into our [extra]ordinary environments dripping with vibrancy, prophecy, jagged teeth, and hidden treasures.

Or, dip your toes into waking anxieties: sour smells, two-way mirrors, and a touch of rot.

Remember, dreams pull only from the bank of our lived experiences.

From the pillow to the clouds, we drift.

Can one dream without sleeping?

These works stand as proof.
